How to Use the Library: Introduction

Video Transcript

Hi. Welcome to this research guide on how to use the library. I’m Doug Davidson, the research and instructional services librarian here at Northwestern Oklahoma State University.

Whether you’re taking an introductory composition class or you’re just looking to learn on your own about how to research effectively, you’ve come to the right place.

This guide is divided into four sections: We’ll go in turn through a discussion of the print collection here at the J. W. Martin Library, followed by step-by-step instructions for getting the most out of our website, our online library catalog, and our research databases. Thank you for joining me today. So let’s get started.
